“ I'm glad I got to meet you if not for just a brief period. You were such a sweet, loving woman! There wasn't enough time to spend with you but I've always kept you in my prayers and in my heart. So sad that I'll never get to see you again but am grateful that you are no longer suffering.

My deepest and most sincere condolences to the family and friends.

Until we meet again. . .

With much love to you all.

“ My grandma is such a fascinating woman. This girl's an Amazon for taking on and living through many illness at once for such, such a long time. You never feel bad in her presence because she loves company. I wish the best for everyone experiencing loss with me.As for you Mini,My family and I love you so much. I hope you get the biggest garden up there and the beautiful home that is much better than the last. So much love.

“ My mom is one of the strongest women that I know. She suffered a debilitating disease for the past 30 years of her life without ever complaining until these past few days of her life.

My mom was a wonderful and loving mother who always put her family first no matter what. Everyone who encountered her loved her very much for her kindness and her generosity .

With a huge hole in my heart I said goodbye to my mom but I know that she is in a better place where she will no longer be suffering from horrific pain and that comforts me somewhat.

Today, tomorrow and everyday, tell your mom you love her. If she's close to you , hug and kiss her and appreciate every moment you have with her because the lost of a mother is a long journey back to happiness.

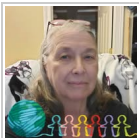

I love you mom always and forever.
