Your smiling, innocent 8th grade smile will forever be etched in my memory. Our long talks, tree stump, movies, hugs, and more will always be cherished. You are forever in my heart dear, old friend.... and your family forever in my thoughts. Surfs up!!!! Xo*

“ The family would like for anyone wanting to donate or send flowers please check out waves4water. We have been trying to bring awareness to our favorite charity. A surfer and a backpack and a filter that fit inside. This one water filter will give 100 people five years of clean water longer if the filter is clean often. Imagine being able to give a village something as simple as water but changes so many lives. Thank you for your understanding in this overwhelming time. I only hope his passing was in vain. He loved his family and friends. My son was his world. Being family doesn't have to mean you are related by blood. We both learned that sometimes our friends become our family because of pretty egos and now we will never talk about our day or what we wanted one of my drones to do. He was a good man battling demons that he couldn't get away from. Pain that runs that deep is heartbreaking because we can do anything for them. So if someone you know is struggling with depression. Be kind and understand that there is no way to snap out of it but we have to remember we guide ourselves to a better life.
