“ There was only one time when we went to Six Flags together as adults (well almost adult for you) We decided to do a different pose for each picture, but in one of these, you just couldn't contain your excitement and make the angry face with the rest of us.

You have always been so full of everything and you would make everyone around you feel what you were feeling because your emotions bled out of you. That has always been you my little big brother.

“ In this picture, we were sweating our butts off. We just finished working out at the gym. I remember we were on the treadmills and you kept saying "Keep going!! This is for TACOS in Mexico!!!"
